Susan Gulette Named Director of the Division of Property Assessments

Comptroller Justin P. Wilson is pleased to announce that Susan Gulette has been named the Director of the Comptroller's Division of Property Assessments (DPA).

"I am confident in Susan's leadership, and I'm very pleased that she has embraced the opportunity to further improve our Division of Property Assessments," said Comptroller Justin P. Wilson. "I have no doubt that Susan is the right person to help our office achieve its mission of making government work better for all Tennesseans."

The Division of Property Assessments helps ensure property assessments are administered fairly and equitably across Tennessee's 95 counties. The Division also manages Tennessee's IMPACT computer-assisted mass appraisal system and administers Tennessee's property tax relief program. The Division works closely with county assessors, trustees, mayors, register of deeds and county commissioners.

"This is an exciting time for the division with field operations, administration and systems joining together," said Gulette. "I am honored to be given the opportunity to lead such a great division into the future."

Susan Gulette joined the Comptroller's Office in 2001 and has assumed increasing levels of responsibility. Most recently, Susan served as DPA's Director of Systems and Administration. She also leads the Comptroller's Office of Local Government.

Susan is a 2000 graduate of Middle Tennessee State University, and an alumnus of the 2004 Tennessee Government Management Institute and the 2012 Tennessee Government Executive Institute.

A native of Big Springs, Texas, Susan and her husband Mark currently reside in Mt. Juliet, TN. They have four sons and five grandchildren.
