

TENNESSEE
COMPTROLLER
OF THE TREASURY

Rachel Buckley
Assistant General Counsel

Rachel Buckley is an Assistant General Counsel in the Tennessee Comptroller's Office. Rachel provides guidance and advice to Tennessee citizens, media, and governmental entities on issues related to Tennessee's open meetings and open records laws. She also promotes awareness of those laws by participating in educational outreach events across the state. In addition to her duties within the Office of Open Records Counsel, she also serves as counsel to the Water and Wastewater Financing Board and Utility Management Review Board.

Rachel began working for the state in 2013 as an Assistant General Counsel in the Tennessee Department of Children's Services. She later served as an Assistant Attorney General in the Tennessee Attorney General's Office. She joined the Comptroller's Office in 2017 as Assistant Open Records Counsel and was later named an Assistant General Counsel.

Rachel is a graduate of Saint Louis University where she holds a Bachelor of Arts in Spanish and Theology. She received her law degree from the University of Tennessee College of Law.

In her spare time, Rachel enjoys exploring Nashville and cheering on the Predators and Tennessee Vols. She frequently returns home to East Tennessee to visit friends and family.
